

Please do not change the no-call list. I find telemarketing calls to be intrusive and often rude. It's bad enough that I have to sort through and dispose of junk mail that I have not solicited, but to have to respond to an unsolicited phone call marketing a product or service that I am not interested in is worse. I really consider them an invasion of my privacy and I worry that a telemarketing call may keep me from being contacted by family or friends who may need my help.
